London's original family gin distiller, Hayman's has created a limited-edition London-inspired hand gift wrap for its London Dry Gin on sale at all duty free stores in Heathrow, London Gatwick and London Stanstead airports. The gift-wrapped bottles will be available in store from December 1.

The artwork features London-iconic landmarks including Big Ben, the black taxi and a perfect gin cocktail.

James Hayman, co-owner and fifth generation family member of Hayman's, comments, "As the original London gin, it felt like a great idea to create a giftable version for all those traveling in and out of this iconic destination city we call home."

Speaking on behalf of Avolta, Aisha Dad, Category Manager for Liquor in the UK, said, "With its 160 years of gin heritage, we felt that Hayman's is one of the most relevant brands to be offering in our world duty free stores for travelers and Londoners alike as a take-home from the city. This really is a stunning gift, and the London wrapping delivers that all important sense of place with style."

The original gin and benchmark of London Dry, Hayman's is still 100% independently owned and made using only their 160-year-old family recipe and a traditional two-day process. Sold in more than 70 countries worldwide, Hayman's London Dry Gin is the leading London gin still made in the heart of London.
