

Leading retailers confirm attendance at 2022 TFWA World Exhibition & Conference

Alongside a high number of exhibitors, which is currently close to pre-pandemic levels, many retailers from across the world have confirmed their participation in the 2022 TFWA World Exhibition & Conference in Cannes.

Operating within a variety of different duty free and travel retail channels, organizations both large and small that have already signed up for the industry's must-attend event include: Dufry from Hong Kong, King Power from Thailand, Kansai Airports from Japan, Shinsegae Duty Free from Korea, Motta International from Panama, Muscat Duty Free from Oman, and a number of Europe-based retailers and travel operators such as Heinemann, Lagardère Travel Retail, Istanbul Airport, Inflight Sales Group, Aer Rianta International, MSC Cruises, Fjord Line and others.

Held at the Palais des Festivals in Cannes October 2 – 6, TFWA World Exhibition & Conference will feature a refreshed event program that includes a new, additional social element. From the much-awaited return of the Sunday opening “Get Together” evening, TFWA Lounge after-work to the arrival of a new late night social concept, hosted on the Carlton Beach, this year's edition will offer plenty of networking opportunities to all participants.

As industry support for the event continues to increase rapidly, more details will be announced in the coming weeks.

“The growing list of prominent retailers from all over the world confirming their presence at the event this year in Cannes is impressive. It is heart-warming to see again the familiar names of those who have been long-term supporters of our industry events, and we are also excited to welcome many first-time exhibitors and visitors. Given the high level of interest from many players big and small across the industry, I have no doubt that the event will be a success,” says Erik Juul-Mortensen, TFWA President.
