

Brown-Forman announces new board member

CEO of multiple global companies, has joined Brown-Forman's Board of Directors

Brown-Forman Corporation has announced the election of Jan Singer to the company's Board of Directors, effective immediately. This increases the number of directors on Brown-Forman's Board to 12.

Most recently, Singer was CEO of J.Crew, where she reportedly led transformational work that included financial restructuring, value creation planning, ecommerce acceleration, and brand positioning for the iconic multi-brand specialty retailer.

Formerly, Singer served as CEO of both Victoria's Secret Lingerie and Spanx, Inc. She also spent a decade at Nike, including leading roles. In addition, Singer served as a Board Director for Kate Spade & Company from 2015 to 2017.

"Jan is a veteran consumer and retail executive with a reputation for building brands for long-term growth while responding to current consumer needs. We're delighted for her to bring that experience to the Brown-Forman Board of Directors," said Campbell P. Brown, Brown-Forman Board Chair.
