

Aer Rianta International pays tribute to keyworkers

Team members from Aer Rianta International (ARI) from across the world have created videos of appreciation for those people who are working to help during this challenging time.

Aer Rianta International CEO Ray Hernan said: “Health professionals and front-line staff are selflessly putting other people’s needs above their own, the team right across the world at ARI wanted to recognise that and in some small way show appreciation for their invaluable service”.

ARI is finding ways to show appreciation for those working on the front line in its respective regions.
